MORE BOOKINGS OF GRAIN

Furness-Withy & Company, Ltd., to Ship 400,000 Bushels of Corn to England—Big Shipments to Holland and Germany—Marine News.

Four steamers—two carrying both freight and passengers and two carrying freight only—are now being operated between Norway and Sweden and Newport News and tropical ports by the Norway-Mexico Gulf Line. The two freight steamers, the Dronning Olga and Nordkyn, are now enroute for this port with a total of about 2,200 tons of import freight for shipment to the West. The Nordkyn is due today and the Dronning Olga will get in next week from Gothenburg, Sweden.

Since it made Newport News its port of call in the United States a little more than a year ago, the Norway-Mexico Gulf Line's business has increased considerably. The line started out with monthly sailings, the Texas and Norge being operated on the line. Later the Dronning Olga was added to the fleet, and now a fourth vessel has been added, giving the line semi-monthly sailings, instead of monthly sailings.

Business Steadily Growing.
The business of the company is steadily growing and the indications are that additional steamers will have to be operated in the not far distant future. The passenger steamers bring a number of passengers to this port and it frequently happens that passengers are turned away on the other side. The Norwegian government is interested in sending immigrants to this country over this line and there is bright prospect for a steady increase in the flow of immigrants through this port from Norway.

This line is one of the most valuable plying out of this port and the indications are that it will become one of the biggest operating here.
Newport News is the only port in Virginia where immigrants are received direct from Europe and the State department of agriculture and immigration is doing what it can to assist in bringing the Norwegians here to settle the unoccupied farm lands in the Old Dominion.

More Booking of Grain.
Furness-Withy & Company, Ltd., has booked shipments of approximately 400,000 bushels of corn from Newport News to England during the next three months. The United States Shipping Company already has bookings of nearly 1,000,000 bushels of grain for the next three months and it is certain that the grain trade here this winter will be brisker than it has been in five years. The grain is to be sent to London, Liverpool, Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Hamburg and the first shipments will be made next month, the grain going on the regular liners.
The initial shipment of grain this season was made this week on the German steamer Mecklenburg, which took 10,200 bushels of corn to Antwerp. Incidentally this was the first shipment of grain to Antwerp from Newport News in many years.

MRS. BEAM IS STILL MISSING FROM HOME

Police and Searching Parties Can Find No Trace of Mrs. Beam.

Although the entire police department and searching parties have been hunting for her for the past twenty-four hours, no trace has yet been found of Mrs. Annie Beam, the aged woman who mysteriously disappeared from the home of her son, Harry Bracken, 339 Twenty-sixth street. It was thought possible that Mrs. Beam had returned to Philadelphia, but telegraphic inquiry from her relatives in that city last night brought the answer that she had not returned to Philadelphia.

The disappearance of Mrs. Beam is puzzling her relatives and the police. She left home to make some purchases at a store on Washington avenue and so far as has been learned now no one has seen her since that time. Before leaving home she told Mrs. Bracken that after making her purchases she would walk up the avenue toward the shipyard and return home later.

STEAMER BREAKS DOWN.

Pocahontas Towed Here from Upper James and is Repairing.

The Old Dominion steamer Pocahontas broke her crank shaft Thursday afternoon on the upper James river while bound from this port to Richmond. Tugs went to her assistance and towed her to this port. She is now repairing at the shipyard.

ANNUAL BANQUET DECEMBER 1.

Many Prominent Men to Attend Function of Chamber of Commerce.
The Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual banquet at the Warwick hotel on the night of December 1 and invitations are now being sent out to a number of prominent men in Virginia. Among those who will be invited are Senators Martin and Swann, Governor Mann, Lieutenant-Governor J. Taylor Ellyson, Congressman
W. A. Jones, Congressman Carter Glass and Hon. Henry C. Stuart.

BOY BOILED TO DEATH.

Georgia Lad Falls Into Hot Kettle of Syrup.
(By Associated Press)
THOMASVILLE, GA., Nov. 18.— Boiled to death in syrup was the manner of death suffered by the two-year-old son of Georgia Swift, a white man, at Metcalf, this county, late yesterday. The child, walking backwards, fell into the kettle of syrup, which was being carried by two men and was submerged.

Hung Jury in Moss Case.

After being out some time, the jury in the United States District Court at Norfolk was unable to reach a verdict yesterday in the case of Hugh Moss, charged with robbing the United States mails, and it was discharged by Judge Waddill. Moss will be given another trial.

Mr. Lecky Returns Home.
Robert Lecky, of Richmond, who has been here for the past two weeks as a witness in the insurance trial left for his home in Richmond yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Dabman Returns Home.
Rev. E. T. Dabman, D. D., presiding elder of the Farmville district, who has been visiting Mr. M. S. Llewellyn in this city, left yesterday morning for his home in Farmville.

Non-Support Charged.
Alfred Sarubus, an Italian barber who lives at 512 Twenty-second street, was arrested yesterday morning by Patrolman Giddings on a warrant charging him with non-support.

Good Loser.
Riley—How about that gold mine you bought stock in last year?
Smiley—Why, we've called it "The Bulldog." It's the bravest little mine you ever heard of.

Riley (guzzled).—Dravest?
Smiley—Sure! There isn't a yellow streak anywhere in it!—Puck.

COMING OUT EARLY

Many May Fight Threr Years
Hence for Treasurership.

CURTIS IS NOT ELIGIBLE

Present City Treasurer Cannot Succeed Himself—Commissioner Crump Will Be Candidate—Says Fee System Will Be Abolished.

Following the announcement from Richmond Thursday evening that the amendment to the State constitution allowing treasurer and commissioners of the revenue in the cities to succeed themselves in office was defeated in the election November 8, several well known Democrats of this city are said to have announced their intention of running for the office of city treasurer to succeed James M. Curtis, whose term of office expires on December 31, 1913. This office carries with it the largest salary of any office in Newport News and the fight for it undoubtedly will be one of the most spirited ever pulled off here.

Commissioner of the Revenue R.
W. Crump will be a candidate to succeed himself in 1913. Mr. Crump was appointed to his office by Judge Bar-ham last year and, under a ruling of the attorney-general of Virginia, he is eligible to succeed himself for one term. Mr. Crump has been commissioner of the revenue for ten years and he began his present term on January 1, 1910.

Try To Have Law Reenacted.

In all probability the commissioners of the revenue in the cities will endeavor to have the next legislature re-enact the statute giving the power to appoint the commissioners. Such an act was passed several years ago and all of the present commissioners are serving under appointments by the judges of the Corporation Courts. At its last session the State legislature decided to repeal the law and allow the people to vote on the question of whether or not the commissioners could succeed themselves in office.

The legislature meets again before the present terms of the commissioners expire and the law can be re-enacted. However, some of the Democratic leaders here yesterday expressed grave doubt that the legislature would be willing to enact the law after the people had voted not to allow the commissioners to succeed themselves in office.

Simon Curtis Eligible.
While the treasurers in the cities cannot succeed themselves, the treasurers and commissioners in the counties can succeed themselves to office and hence Simon Curtis, treasurer of Warwick county, probably will be re-elected in 1913.

One of the men who will be a candidate for the office of city treasurer three years hence said yesterday that he believes that the time is not far distant when the legislature will abolish the fee system in Virginia and the offices of city and county treasurers, commissioners of the revenue, clerks of courts and city sergeants and sheriffs will be placed on salaries. He says that a strong fight is being made on the present fee system and that in all probability it will be abolished in six or eight years.

AMUSEMENTS

A record-breaking crowd saw the Guy Johnson Players in "The Ranchman" at the Academy of Music last night. More than fifteen hundred people were in the house, the attendance being larger than it ever has been since the engagement of this company opened, and probably as large as ever before in the history of the house.

The sold watch offered as a premium was won by Wm. J. Ham, of 232 Forty-second street.

A Lesson in Opportunity.

The governor-elect of Tennessee is Benjamin W. Hooper, less than 40 years of age, who does not know his real name, or who his parents were.
He was found on the streets of Knoxville and committed to the care of an orphan asylum, whence he was taken ten years later by Captain Hooper, of Newport, Tenn., who gave him his name and educated him. It is one of the splendid things about this republic of ours that the name a man makes for himself is the only thing that counts; the things he does the only ones reckoned up when the people look about them for their leaders. From orphan asylum to the executive mansion! From nameless wait to governor of a sovereign State! The way is always open in this country to those who work and strive and keep the faith.—Baltimore Sun.

COOK WITH GAS

A DOUBLE
REVENGE

By F. A. MITCHELL
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Would you mind," said Gwen to me one day shortly before we were to send out our wedding cards, "do a bit of flirting?"

"Flirting? What do you want to do that for, and whom do you want to flirt with?"

"I wish to flirt with Ed Avery, and I wish to punish him for the way he treated me once."

"What did he do?"

"Why, he just acted as if he could marry me if he liked. He went around telling everybody we were engaged."

"Weren't you?"

"H'm! Do you suppose I'd marry that stick?"

She took my face between her two hands, pulled it down toward hers and kissed me.

"Very well, sweetheart, but remember this is the last. In a few weeks you'll be married and such things will be out of order."

"That's just the reason why I want to get this one out of the way before settling down."

I was very busy getting my affairs in shape to be married and go on my wedding trip and thought very little about Gwen's "cleaning up" her old affairs and getting them out of the way. I was a little surprised one day to receive a note from her that she was feeling very badly and feared she might not be in condition for the wedding by the day she had set. I went to see her and found her propped up with pillows and looking a little pale.

She said she had a superstitious dread of putting off a wedding once the day was publicly announced, and to make sure she thought we'd better make it a month later. I assented, and the order for the cards was countermanded.

Gwen didn't seem to get perfectly well, and there was another putting off of the announcement. One day my sister Bettie came to me and said:

"Dick, do you know that you're going to lose Gwen?"

"Lose Gwen? What do you mean?"

"I think she's going to drop you and marry Ed Avery."

"Nonsense!" I replied. "That's simply an old score she's got against Avery, and she's paying him up before being married."

"Don't you believe it."

"I know it. She told me what she was going to do before starting in."

"You mean she told you what she thought she was going to do. We women are never certain what we'll eventually do in such cases. It depends more on the man than on the girl. If a man has a girl and lets some one else take her away from him it's his own fault."

Bettie left me to think over what she had said. I didn't do much thinking, but I did some mighty quick acting. I wrote a note to Gwen telling her that an old flame of mine had come to town who had jilted me. I was burning to pay her off in her own coin. I must therefore ask the same indulgence I had granted.

The reply to this was, "Come and see me at once." I called the same evening and was received very coldly.

"Who is this woman for whom you have deserted me?"

"Deserted me?"

"Yes, couldn't I tell by the tone of your note that she has you already in her toils? Do you consider it honorable for you to have had this affair and never have told me anything about it?"

"How unreasonable of you! You didn't tell me about your affair with Avery. And when you said you wished to clean it up before our wedding and get it out of the way I didn't object. I merely wish to win this girl's heart who has treated me so shabbily and then throw it to the winds."

"I positively forbid you to have anything to do with her."

"You surprise me. How about Avery?"

"That's an entirely different matter."

"Not different in kind."

"I don't consent."

"Very well. I withdraw my consent to your 'cleaning up' with Avery."

"I am just about to give Mr. Avery his deserts. I don't care to be thwarted on the eve of my revenge."

"And I will not be talked in tramping on the feelings of this creature who—"

"I was so angry with the imaginary person I had conjured up for the purpose that my ire choked my utterance."

"Nonsense!" A forced laugh. "It is evident you're trying to throw yourself at her feet. Go near her at your peril."

"I will not give up my revenge." I paced back and forth like a caged tiger.

"You will give it up at once or all over between us."

"Avery is still in the market."

"I shall be through with Mr. Avery in a very few days."

"And I shall be through with my affair tonight. I shall go to see her.
She will be superbly dressed, thinking to beat me through the senses. She will give me honeyed words. I will reply in kind. Then at the moment she thinks she has me in her toils I will fling—"

"Poof!"

"Gwen," I said, altering my tone.

"I have a proposition to make—a final one. We both give up our revenge or our engagement is broken."

There was some deliberation on her part, but she gave in.

Egypt's Lost Art Discovered.
Embalming that will maintain the human body a hundred ages—the lost art of Egypt—is said to have been discovered by Homer J. Parr, a graduate of the School of Pharmacy of the University of Pittsburgh. Parr has been experimenting on rodents, and has a number of mummy rats which he uses as paperweights on his desk, and one large one which he uses for a door-check. He claims that a body properly protected can be rendered immune to the disintegrating influence of time and would carry thousands of years into the future its beauty of today.—Pittsburgh Special to the Philadelphia Record.

"Home, Sweet Home."
"Home, Sweet Home" was played on an accordion and a violin by two sailors of the bark Pallas, who, with their captain and fourteen other members of the crew, were caught in their boat on a reef south of Cuba and in danger of being pounded to pieces had not a passing ship heard the music and come to their rescue. These sailors will not agree with the Chicago music expert who declares that the air of "Home, Sweet Home" is unworthy to be called music. The melody will always have an especial sweetness for their ears.—Indianapolis Star.
